PARTIES, JURISDICTION, AND VENUE

2. First Health provides national Preferred Provider Organization (“PPO”) network access to health plan-customers (e.g., insurance companies, self-insured employer groups) all across the United States. A PPO is a type of health plan that contracts with medical providers to create a network of participating providers who have agreed to provide health care services to health-plan members at pre-negotiated discounted rates. First Health operates one of the largest PPO networks in the country. Many health plans contract for access to First Health’s PPO network to supplement an existing network of providers that they offer through their own self-administered
